- › Develop your expertise in Sustainable Tourism at a leading European university
- › Gain knowledge on environmental sustainability, climate change issues, and resilience in the tourism field

Teaching mix and faculty

The teaching mix comprises 10% distance learning to acquire basic knowledge; 20% traditional lectures and 70% hands-on practice and training in a company. Two thirds of the faculty is made up of professors from partner universities and visiting professors from leading hospitality management schools, and one third are managers from leading tourism companies. A wide range of innovative elective courses

Three alternative tracks

The Master of Science in Hospitality and Tourism Management (HTM) is a 2-year dual degree programme. The 1st year held in Milan. The 2nd year offers three specialisation choices.

- › Digital Technologies and Data for Tourism and Creative Industries at Università IULM. After completion students earn an Italian degree (Laurea Magistrale).
- › Hospitality and Tourism Management, at the University of Central Florida in Orlando, US. After completion students earn a dual degree: Italian (Laurea Magistrale) and American (Master of Science) as well as the possibility of staying in the US after graduation for one year of work in the tourism sector.
- › Sustainable Destination Management and Communication at Università IULM and – upon free choice – at the University of Oulu, Finland. After successful completion, students attain an Italian degree (Laurea Magistrale). By spending one semester at the University of Oulu, they obtain a dual degree: an Italian degree (Laurea Magistrale) and a Finnish one (Master of Science)

Students who choose to complete the full two-year course at Università IULM still have the option to spend a semester abroad at one of our partner universities or engage in an internship abroad.
